

Teach and live in another culture

Short Term Teacher
Exchange Program

Visiting another educational system is an effective way to reflect upon our teaching practice while observing other teaching and learning strategies. This professional development experience promotes sharing of best practices across cultures, creating partnerships between classrooms and promoting deeper global understanding through visiting and then hosting your counterpart on the return visit.

How does the exchange work?

You are matched with a counterpart of similar teaching assignment and are billeted in the home of their counterpart. You would job shadow at the school of your counterpart, with the possibility of visiting other grades and institutions which are of interest. Often cultural visits are also arranged to correspond with the interests of both parties.

Where can you go?

You can choose to go on an exchange with a teacher from either Denmark or Germany.
